The Intelligencer.

WHEELING, W. VA., DECEMBER 14, 1888.

Some more good reasons are suggested on the local page for changing the name of West Virginia to something else.

This question is, has old Boreas come down merely on an excursion, with a limited ticket, or is he here for a long old-fashioned visit.

In the retirement of N. N. Hoffman of the Morgantown Post, West Virginia newspaperman loses one of its most popular and honored members.

Mrs. Hamilton is a "born diplomat." To the hundreds of requests she receives to use her influence with her husband in the matter of appointments she sends but one reply—"I am not in politics."

It is too late now for the Democrats in Congress to carry favor with the people of Dakota. When it was in their power to grant the prayer of admittance they refused for partisan reasons. Dakota will bear this in mind.

The Register says only an iconoclast would want to abandon the name West Virginia. An iconoclast is an idol-breaker. The Register always was wedded to its idols, and the INTELLIGENCER never had much compunction in separating it ruthlessly from its false gods. The Register should read its dictionary.

Mercer is one of the counties in which the Democrats say the wicked Republican carried out the nefarious scheme to steal the State. Now, it is developed that the Democrats were at work upon that very line in Mercer county. The Prosecuting Attorney, who was a Democrat, became disgusted at the prostitution of the courts to base partisan uses and resigned, refusing to be a party to the conspiracy to rob the Republicans of their honestly earned victory. That Democratic Prosecuting Attorney will be honored by his fellow citizens after the conspirators have been politically buried.

The Point Pleasant Register is the Democratic organ of Mason county. It does not endorse some of the methods of the party leaders and says so in a many way. For instance, see the following from the last issue:

"There is a disposition to try and prevail upon the Governor to withhold the certificate of election from Hon. Charles B. Smith, Congress-elect from the Fourth District. We don't believe Gov. Wilson can be inveigled into doing anything of the kind. On the record of the votes demanded by his opponent, it was shown that Capt. Smith had a clear majority of 13 in the District. This ought to be enough to end the wrangle. We would like to have a Democrat represent this District, but are not going to join in the cry of 'fraud' to keep Capt. Smith out of his seat in Congress to which he was fairly and honestly elected, simply because he is a Republican."

Who are Doing the "Blackening." The following from the Wirt Transcript is a sample of a species of editorials that are being published by the Democratic papers of this State: "We are sorry the Republican papers of the State have tried to blacken the fair name of West Virginia, by branding with fraud every effort on the part of the people to correct the election returns and bring to justice the parties who have violated the law."

Taking one consideration with another, the paragraph is very amusing. In view of the fact that before the votes were all counted, and when it became manifest that the Democracy of this State had experienced a Waterloo, the cry of fraud was begun by the Democratic press and has been kept up ever since, the charge that the Republican papers are blackening the fair name of West Virginia is ridiculous. The Democracy early made the charge of corruption on the part of Republicans; it openly charged, without grounds, that certain counties were carried by the colonizing of voters and the purchase of Democrats; it met, by its committee, in solemn caucus and issued to the people and circulated broadcast outside of the State, an "address," which from the first sentence to the last is a foul slander upon the people of West Virginia and "blackens the fair name of the State;" its defeated candidates go from county to county demanding recounts, and charging fraud; its boards of commissioners during these recounts, in defiance of law, throw out ballots that the statutes command them to count; the offices of Democratic county clerks are entered and the ballots changed so as to defeat the will of the people. All these things and more have happened, and blindly partisan Democratic papers overlook them and accuse Republicans of "blackening the name of the State" if they utter a protest.

It is a habit the Democratic party has of crying fraud whenever defeated. It never took a whipping gracefully or acknowledged defeat manfully. Its history for the past quarter of a century bears out this statement.

The charges of fraud and corruption in this State come principally from the Democratic leaders and press, and if there is any "blackening of the fair name of the State" they are responsible for it. The Republicans have protested against the outrages upon the ballot box committed in two or three counties, and are endeavoring to bring to justice the guilty parties. The INTELLIGENCER has had no small part in bringing to light the crimes and will continue to labor for the detection and conviction of their perpetrators, but the INTELLIGENCER and the Republican party have never shown a desire to disfranchise voters by taking advantage of weak technicalities. They are not, as is the Democratic State Committee, issuing defamatory "addresses to the people," charging our best citizens with crimes which everybody knows they did not commit. They are not advertising to the world that thousands of honest citizens were purchased with money, as does Senator Faulkner. They are not, as is "blackening the fair name of West Virginia." They are willing to abide by the result as shown by the returns made by Democratic election officers. They are asking for nothing more than what the returns show them entitled to. They know that they have gained a victory in reducing the Democratic majority to almost nothing and in electing their candidate for Governor. They believe this has been accomplished by fair means and because of the justness of their cause.

It is the Democratic State Committee, ably assisted by the Democratic press, that is "blackening the fair name of the State" in the effort to account for a humiliating defeat.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

Shreds of Fact and Clippings for Dame and Damsel.

Where panels are used on a shirt they must be either in narrow gores, or, if of pleated material, as was the case with the style, but left to fly apart at each motion of the wearer.

The new long mitts just brought out for wear with dinner gowns, have no finger at all, but have a double row of silk embroidery around the top of the hand and the edge of the thumb.

The new glove has a calfskin palm and a plush back. The plush may be had in green, red or black. Another new glove has a stockinette back with a leather palm. They are cool and strong.

Fans are larger than ever, and those of peacock feathers and of gathered gauze caught in a puff at the top of each stick by a tiny bow, are among the newest and most admired styles, especially for evening use.

Something new in furs is the sealskin pelorine, square and short at the back, with its fringe of tails just reaching to the waist, and square and so long in front as to come near to the knee, and gives the effect of a stole.

Cream white, red and gold, with fawn russet, olive, brown and green, are the admired combinations of the season for cloth gowns. Yet there are many who cling to the old green, in all shades, with the dull pink known as old rose.

The knots of perfumed velvet violets now accepted as the proper fastening for the bon at its crossing, may be made to keep their scent all winter by putting them away in a small box with powdered coral root, folded in tissue paper in the bottom.

The Carmelite dressing-gown, which is to be had in peach color, russet, gray, old blue and old rose flannels, has a monk's head, a giraffe of heavy knotted cord and loose ends of the cord, which are as the head and loose fronts, are faced with white silk.

It is asserted by those who have seen Mrs. Amelia Rives-Chandler that she is not by any means so beautiful as her pictures represent her. Her nose has a decided hump, and, when the press of her photographs are sent to her, she completely tones down her prominent olfactory organ with a fine lead pencil and touches up the features generally. She is something of an artist herself and understands just how to do it.

The statement made some months ago that the beautiful Countess of Dudley sleeps between black silk sheets was humorously derided by esteemed contemporaries. The Fall Mail Gazette now asserts the same fact and adds that her ladyship's black sheets are of silk merino—very soft and fine material. She and the Duchess of Hamilton both wear black silk lingerie. The latter has a black silk nightgown with a flounce of lace. Could caprice go further?

"It is, to my mind, hideous to see a softly bred woman, when her short dress does not finish the bird of she aims at, take it when it falls and wring its head off or knock its brains out against the barrel of her fowling piece," says the Paris correspondent of the London Truth.

The Grand Duchess Vladimir of Russia has been proving herself a crack shot in the preserves of Comte de Potocki and other wealthy members of the high-life set. It is to her credit to have taken in a bat in the thicket that lasted four hours? A thousand pheasants were knocked down, out of which number 110 were shot by her. It will interest the weak-minded women who like to copy royal and imperial ladies to know that the Grand Duchess wore at the shooting party a killed beige skirt and "paleot" of the same material. The hat was gray—the Tyrolean shape—and was trimmed with green ribbon.

The dress worn by Empress Frederick is the dress of a German widow, very picturesque though simple and severe. The gown is a long, plain one, covered entirely by erpe, and only relieved by two long bands of white lawn from the neck of the gown in front to the feet. The widow's cap is black and is worn in a stiff point, which comes down low on the forehead, to which is fastened a long, black veil, falling almost to the feet behind. The three princesses wear the same deep veil and cap without the white bands, which are a distinctive widow's dress. Since the arrival of Empress Frederick on a visit to her mother, Queen Victoria, the mourning worn by the royal family and household is in accordance with German customs. Where white erpe caps have been worn hitherto by some of the ladies, black caps are now the fashion, the only person adhering to the English white cap being the Queen.

Cataract Cured. A clergyman, after years of suffering from that loathsome disease, Cataract, and vainly trying every known remedy, at last found a recipe which completely cured and saved him from death. An sufferer from this dreadful disease sending a self addressed stamped envelope to Prof. J. A. Lawrence, 88 Warren Street, New York City, will receive the recipe free of charge. MWAP-KRW

"HOW'S YOUR LIVER?" Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy liver. When the Liver is Torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated. Food lies in the stomach decomposing—poisoning the blood. Frequent headache ensues, and a feeling of lassitude and depression indicate how the whole system is deranged. No agency on earth has restored so many people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy liver as

Sunday Register.
The census of 1880 places the total number of voters in Louisiana, white and black, at 216,787, yet the total vote is but:Harrison 80,701
Cleveland 53,022
Fisk 5,220
Street 6,222
Total 145,165

Assuming that there has been a small increase in the eight years, one-half the voters did not go to the polls. Georgia had by the last census 321,438 voters, white and black. The vote this year is:

Harrison 40,453
Cleveland 100,472
Fisk 1,962
United Labor 196
Total 143,083

This is considerably less than one-half the vote claimed by that State in 1880. A Presidential election in Georgia is a fraud. We have over 800,000 voters in Ohio—legal voters. If in a Presidential election less than half that number were to vote, and they all on the Republican side, every Democratic statesman in the South would declare just what we do of the vote of the Civil States, such a Presidential election a fraud.
